How did Birthday Parties get started?

The tradition of birthday parties started in Europe a long time ago. It was feared that evil spirits were particularly attracted to people on their birthdays. To protect them from harm, friends and family would come together and be with the birthday person and bring good thoughts and wishes. Giving gifts brought even more good cheer to ward off the evil spirits.

Birthday Traditions in Different Countries

Canada - Greasing the nose with butter or margarine is said to bring good luck. The greased nose makes the child too slippery for bad luck to catch them.

Denmark - A flag is flown outside a window to designate that someone who lives in that house is having a birthday. Presents are placed around the child's bed while they are sleeping so they will see them immediately upon awakening.

India - At school the birthday child wears a colored dress and passes out chocolates to the entire class, with the help of a trusted friend.

Israel - The birthday child sits in a chair while grown-ups raise and lower it a number of times corresponding to the child's age, plus one for good luck.

Italy - The birthday child's ears are pulled as many times as how old they are turning.

Norway - The birthday child stands out in front of their class and chooses a friend to share a little dance while the rest of the class sings a happy birthday song.

Puerto Rico - The child gets tapped on the arm for each birth year. A big party which includes a formal dinner is held.

Russia - Instead of a birthday cake, many Russian children receive a birthday pie with a birthday greeting carved into the crust.

Scotland - A pound note is given for every year old the child is plus an additional pound for good luck. A soft tap on the bottom is also given for each year.
